

Frequently Asked Questions

What Are the Treatment Sessions Like?

Quick and easy! After your initial preparation, your treatment provider will move a wand-like hand piece over your skin. The hand piece emits a light that disables the hair follicles. Once this is completed, the treatment provider will wipe away any loose hair from your skin, and you're ready to go.

What Should Most People Expect After Treatment?

Most people experience some mild redness and tenderness in the treated area shortly after treatment. This does not interfere with normal activities and usually subsides within a day. In some cases, the redness may last longer, but will still be mild and temporary. Your treatment provider will explain other, less likely side effects to you. You can continue on with normal daily routines immediately following treatment, but do need to keep the treated areas out of the sun.

What Does It Feel Like?

Each pulse, which lasts less than a second, produces a slight tingling feeling. In particularly sensitive areas, such as the upper lip, it may feel like a quick, light pinch.

Is It Suitable For Everyone?

The Palomar Medilux System enables our technicians to customize the treatment to exactly match your hair and skin color and type. As long as there is some color in your hair (even blond hair has enough color), then the Medilux will be effective.

What Does The FDA Say About Laser Hair Removal Treatments?

The FDA has approved the use of the Palomar Medilux system for safety and effectiveness for the permanent reduction of hair.

Is Hair Removal Temporary or Permanent? How Many Treatments Will It Take?

Hair removal is both temporary and permanent. During a short (4 to 7) series of treatments 4-8 weeks apart, clients will rarely have to shave, tweeze, or pluck. However, if the treatments stop, some of the hair will return in a few months, which will be finer and lighter than before. The more treatments, the less hair will ultimately come back.

What Are The Worst Things That Can Happen With Laser Or Intense Pulse Light Treatment?

Rare complications include burning, blistering, and extra pigmentation. All of which will usually resolve in a few days to a few weeks.

Do Laser or IPL Treatments Cause Cancer?

No, the light is in the visible range and has never been shown to produce cancers of the skin or any other organ.

Photofacials

For skin rejuvenation and Rosacea

A photofacial is a non-invasive skin health and restoration treatment that erases the damage inflicted on your skin from sun, aging and biological factors as well as Rosacea. The technology supplies a broad spectrum of light, which reaches deep down within the skin, targeting pigment and vascular imperfections. The goals of therapy are a more even skin color and texture.

This no down time procedure is appropriate for the face but also for the chest, neck, and hands – anywhere that sun damage shows. Laser skin rejuvenation is a non-ablative, non-invasive procedure – the surface of the skin is not damaged or removed.

IPL treats a variety of conditions on the face, neck, chest and hands.
